AUSTRALIAN MADE TIMBERS

Any timber products are sold with the understanding that each piece will be unique with a variation of mineral lines knots and gum veins. Natural timbers are beautiful unique and varied.

Tasmanian Blackwood

BLACKWOOD

The unique reddish-brown colour of blackwood appeals to a specific customer market who prefer warm, earthy colours and more traditional styles. Blackwood is a very dense material, making it extremely durable. The grain is usually straight but sometimes wavy, producing a fiddleback figure.

Australian Wormy Chestnut

WORMY CHESTNUT

This durable timber shows evidence of the challenges faced within the Australian climate such as drought, strong winds, fire and flood. The strong winds in the area stunt the growth of the trees resulting in interesting grain patterns and sap lines. Deep red gum veins, pin holes and squiggly worm marks are signature features of this timber and cannot be avoided during the manufacturing process.

Victorian Ash
Clear Lacquer

VICTORIAN ASH

Victorian Ash is a hardwood timber, encompassing three species that grow in the mountainous areas of Tasmania, Victoria and South East NSW. It is a strong and stable timber that is able to be used for a number of resources. These timbers are highly resistant to damage and considerably dense.
